The Palladium-Item has a story out today about Hoosier lawmakers who intend to forgo their pay raises for this year:

Rep. Joe Donnelly is the latest Indiana lawmaker to voluntarily give up the automatic $4,700 pay raise members of Congress are receiving this year.

“It wouldn't be right for me to accept this raise while the country faces such a difficult economic situation," the Granger Democrat said in a statement Friday. He promised to return his pay increase back to the Treasury.

Rep. Mike Pence, R-Columbus, has said he will be donating his pay raise to charities that help Hoosier children and families. Pence represents Wayne County.
